

EXCELLENT PROGRAMME SPORTS TO BE CARRIED OUT TOMORROW

Empire Day Will be Celebrated on Bigger and Better Scale Than Ever Before at Fort Saskatchewan

MUCH DEPENDS ON ATTITUDE WEATHER PROGNOSTICATOR

Given good weather, the Fort Saskatchewan Victoria Day celebration should be a little better than in any previous year because the management has taken greater effort to make it so. It will be remembered that there was an attendance of 7,000 last year, and with the additional accommodation which the railroads are going to give this year, the crowd should be larger. The programme of sports is large, there being every kind of athletics which comes under the jurisdiction of the Amateur Athletic association, except aquatic sports. The feature event of the day will be the ten-mile road race from the half-way house to the grounds at the Fort. It will start about 10 a.m. and finish in front of the grandstand shortly after 11 o'clock. There are 12 entries for this one event.

The complete entry list contains over 200 entries for all events. It is expected that there will be some provincial records hung up. There usually are some made at the Fort meet and with several of the men who have come to the city from the east during the past year this year should be no exception. Trains leave the C. N. R. station at 8:30, 9:30 and 11:30 o'clock and return at the same hours in the evening. In order to see the finish of the ten-mile race it is necessary to leave on the 8:30 or 9:30 train. Special rates have been secured from all railroads. Better accommodation is being provided on the grounds and it will not be over-crowded.

SNOWSTORMS IN SOUTH ALTA. MOISTENS SOIL TO DELIGHT OF FARMERS

Winnipeg, May 23.—Heavy snowstorms have fallen between Calgary and Medicine Hat and south towards the boundary, thus adding further to the generous precipitation which has lasted what used to be termed the "dry belt." This snowfall will be of immense value to fall wheat, which is in fine condition. Rain fell over other parts of the province. In Manitoba temperatures are in the seventies, but there is lots of moisture in the ground for weeks to come. One must go back seven or eight years to find so general and well founded an optimism regarding the crops.

Woman on Trial for Murder

Newark, N. J., May 23.—Considerable public interest is displayed in the case of Mrs. Camilla Pignatelli, who was brought from her cell, where she has been confined for more than a year, and arraigned in court today to stand trial for the alleged murder of Antonio Antrino. The killing occurred at the woman's home in Montclair on April 24 of last year. She is said to have confessed the deed, explaining that she killed Antrino in defending herself against his importunities to elope.

Antrino was stabbed to death with a carving knife. Mrs. Pignatelli explained to the detectives that in Italy several years ago the dead man paid her attentions. Both, however, two wedded sons coming to America and the woman declared that her answer to the man's proposal to elope, made several weeks before the killing, was that she would not leave her husband and five children. The latter contended that she had killed Antrino on the day of the tragedy called at the Pignatelli home during the absence of the husband. To protect her honor the woman declared she was compelled to slay Antrino.

MISSISSIPPI MERCHANTS

Natchez, Miss., May 23.—The Mississippi Retail Merchants' Association held its annual convention in this city today with a large attendance of members from all over the state. The session will last three days, during which time many questions of importance to the retail trade will be considered.

Would Handle Stock By Municipal System

JAMES BOWER WRITES TO ALDERMAN LUNDY POINTS OUT IMPORTANCE OF SECURING BIGGER SHARE MEAT TRADE FOR EDMONTON.

The following letter has been received by Alderman Lundy, chairman of the stockyards committee of the Edmonton city council, from James Bower, secretary of the United Farmers of Alberta:

"I see by the Edmonton papers that the residents of your city are availing to the importance of securing for the city their rightful share of the meat trade of the province. For years, our association has been endeavoring to enlist the sympathy and support of our towns and cities in this matter, which is of such vital importance to both town and country. Although nature has so lavishly endowed this province with all things requisite for the successful growing of stock, it is most humiliating to know that the business is dividing down to such insignificant proportions; all because of the great guilt that is fixed between the producer and the consumer."

"I consider your city on being the first to take active steps toward the bridging of that guilt, by a municipal handling of stock, for with stock yards and abattoirs confining the hands of private owners a better producer and the consumer."

Indications Point to Drawn-out Inquiry Commis's Charges

LAWYERS CONSUME PRACTICALLY THE ENTIRE MORNING SESSION IN QUIBBLING OVER TECHNICALITIES.

At the present rate of progress there is every indication that the investigation into the charges laid against Commissioners Leitch and Butcher will last for at least six months. At this morning's session of the investigating committee the entire time was taken up in the discussion of the technical points counsel for the commissioners and the committee with the result that Ex-Superintendent McNaughton was sworn on the stand when the committee adjourned at one o'clock.

Up until adjournment was made the charges on which the witness was being examined had not been disputed by counsel for the defense who spent the majority of his time in cross-examining as to whether or not monies levied for a certain purpose could be used for some other purpose.

In discussing the charge that the city had lost the services of several valuable superintendents Borough Commissioner Bouillon being too arbitrary Mr. McNaughton stated that he had

It will provide three new rooms.

SCOUTS TO HAVE SCOUTING CONTEST

On Victoria day the Boy Scouts of Edmonton and Strathcona will have a scouting contest. The theatre of the contest will be the Strathcona side of the river from Fraser's Ferry westward to the university buildings. The Strathcona scouts will form up at the university buildings at 10:30 in the morning and take up outpost positions and try and keep the Edmonton Scouts, who will advance from the Ferry at the same time as a line of Scouts, from getting into the university grounds. There will be upwards of three hundred Scouts in these manoeuvres all in the full uniform. This will offer a good outing to those that do not go to Fort Saskatchewan, and who will follow the boys. The day will be finished by a march past about two o'clock.

The Daily Capital will follow its usual custom of not issuing a paper on Empire Day and therefore will take a day off tomorrow.

NOT ELIGIBLE ACT AS COMMISSIONER

BOWN WILL ADVISE COUNCIL TONIGHT THAT FRASER IS DISQUALIFIED FOR OFFICE TO WHICH WAS RECENTLY APPOINTED.

At the regular meeting this evening City Solicitor Bown will advise the council that D. R. Fraser, who was appointed a commissioner last Friday evening, is not eligible to that office owing to the fact that his firm has a contract for supplying the city with lumber. This being true, Mr. Fraser was never legally appointed a commissioner and another appointment will be in order. It is probable that another commissioner will be appointed this evening, but whom the council will select this time has not been definitely decided as yet.

According to the oath of office, all aldermen, commissioners, etc., must declare that they are not interested, either directly or indirectly, in any contract with the city. This Mr. Fraser did, despite the fact that his company has a contract for lumber. There is in the charter a clause, however, which states that no person shall be disqualified from sitting on the board because they are members of a joint stock company. Mr. Fraser, having been an alderman, while still a member.

Crime Against Girl Brings a Severe Penalty for Paul

SENTENCED TO TWELVE YEARS IN ALBERTA PENITENTIARY FOR SERIOUS OFFENSE—WHITESTEIN GETS OFF WITH THREE MONTHS.

One of the heaviest sentences that has ever been imposed in an Alberta court, apart from sentences for capital offenses, was pronounced by Justice Simmons this morning upon Karl Paul, a German homesteader of the Bruce district, who was given twelve years in the penitentiary for crimes against young girls.

Paul is at present undergoing a term of two years' imprisonment at the penitentiary for cattle stealing, and about one year of this term has already run. The second year will run concurrently with the present sentence, the prisoner secure his release at the end of twelve years. The trial was before Justice Simmons and a jury. Supl. Chawick has taken charge of the children in the case. An appeal for leniency by H. H. Robertson, and the presentation of a petition signed by a large number of prominent business people, requesting lenient treatment, influenced his lordship to impose an exceptionally light

Bert Connors and J. M. Parks Accused of Complicity in Attempt to Destroy County Building

NO EFFORT TO BE MADE TO CONNECT M'NAMARAS IN CASE

Los Angeles, May 23.—Bert H. Connors and J. Mansel Parke, both said to be members, and the latter a former officer in the Los Angeles union of the structural and iron bridge workers, were arrested today charged with being implicated in an attempt to dynamite the new county hall of records of the city, and the general building. Connors was taken into custody on the point of buying a ticket to Seattle. Parks was arrested in the home of Connors. The finding of dynamite in a rear alleyway of the nation dollar hall as evidence of an attempt to destroy the building. Prior to this, Connors it is alleged, was seen among the hooligans.

Detectives say the arrest of Connors and Parks is the culmination of months of close surveillance. The district attorney, when asked whether there would be any effort to connect J. M. McNamara, J. R. McNamara, or Orle McManigal with the alleged attempt of Connors and Parks, said that his office had no evidence showing that the prisoners charged with the dynamiting of the Times had anything to do with Connors and Parks, or that they had any hand in the placing of the dynamite in the alley of the hall of records.

UNKNOWN MAN'S VICTIM ACCIDENT

BROUGHT TO CITY FROM LUMBER CAMP AND DIES FROM INJURIES

An unknown man who was injured yesterday with a circular saw yesterday in the mills of McLellan & Balfour at Gainsford on the G. T. P. west of the city, died this morning in hospital at 1 o'clock this morning. He was brought to the city from the scene of the accident on a light train last night and taken to the hospital for treatment. The man had been working in the lumber camp for some time and was one of an extra gang his name was unknown to the foreman of the works who accompanied him to the city last night. Nothing was found on the injured man that would serve to identify him and it is probable that he will be buried at the expense of the company for which he was working.

A meeting to discuss the project to erect a Presbyterian church at North Edmonton will be held at the close of the service next Sunday at the Mount school. The matter has been under consideration for some time.

Obstruction Methods of Bouillon Delays Business of Public

Utilities Commissioner Objects to New Commissioners Voting With Result That City Affairs Are Held Up

That Commissioners Candy and Fraser were never legally appointed by the city council and that Commissioner Fraser especially is not eligible to sit on the commission board, owing to the fact that his firm has a contract with the city, was the basis of argument at the commission meeting yesterday afternoon which resulted in the meeting breaking up without any business having been transacted. Commissioner Bouillon started the fight which resulted in the furthering of the city's business. The utilities commissioner and Commissioner Duthart took their seats and proceeded to read various communications, completely ignoring Commissioner Candy. When Mayor Armstrong invited Mr. Candy to take a seat at the table, this was where the rumpus started.

Commissioner Bouillon inquired whether Mr. Candy had been appointed a commissioner or not. The mayor replied that he had been.

Mr. Bouillon: "Has he been sworn in?"

Mayor Armstrong: "He has."

Commissioner Bouillon: "We are advised in a letter from one of the aldermen that Mr. Candy was not properly appointed. If Mr. Candy wants to remain as a spectator he can do so, but he cannot vote on any question."

Mayor Armstrong: "Mr. Candy was properly appointed according to the city solicitor, and you can say what you like but he will vote the same as any other commissioner. He was appointed just as properly as you were Mr. Bouillon, if not more so, and has just as much right to vote."

Commissioner Bouillon: "We are advised to the contrary and will ask that we be given proofs before proceeding."

An adjournment was then taken for twenty minutes and when his worship appeared he bore a letter from City Solicitor Down in which the latter gave his legal opinion that Mr. Candy had been legally appointed a commissioner of the city.

When the commissioners had again assembled and the city solicitor's letter had been read, Commissioner Bouillon remarked that he took no stock of the opinion and that he had other legal opinions to show that the commissioners were not properly appointed.

Commissioner Bouillon: "Has Mr. Fraser been sworn in?"

Mayor Armstrong: "He has been."

Commissioner Duthart: "Mr. Fraser's firm has a contract with the city and that disqualifies him in that the oath which he is required to take is to the effect that he has no interest in any contract with the city indirectly or directly. He is interested in a lumber contract signed with the D. R. Fraser Company on the 5th of April of this year and is hereby disqualified."

Mayor Armstrong: "That is for the city solicitor to say."

City Solicitor Brown: "It looks bad, I would like time to consider the question."

The meeting was accordingly adjourned until next Wednesday afternoon.

The letter from Alderman Hyndman to the mayor and commissioners, which was published in an afternoon paper before it was seen by the mayor, reads as follows:

May 22, 1911.

To the Mayor and Commissioners, City of Edmonton:

Gentlemen,—I understand that the two alleged commissioners, Messrs. Candy and Fraser, intend to sit at the commission meeting, which is to be held this afternoon.

As an alderman of the city I wish to protest against their taking part in the proceedings or voting for the reason that in my opinion they are not commissioners of the city, never having been properly appointed such.

I wish also to say that in my opinion the bylaw passed at Friday night's meeting for the raising of money for the purchase of power machinery is not effective, never having been properly finally passed, and it, therefore, would be dangerous for the city to enter into binding contracts with this danger in existence. If you would like to have me discuss the matter with you I will be glad to do so if you will let me know.

Yours truly,
(Signed) J. D. HYNDMAN.

IS PREPARED FOR A HOLIDAY RUSH

EDMONTON STREET RAILWAY TO HAVE TWENTY-ONE CARS FOR TOMORROW.

Twenty-one cars will be in commission on the Edmonton street railway tomorrow morning when the big two days' spring race meet opens in the city, and the department expects to handle larger crowds than have ever before been given transportation in Edmonton. It is anticipated that the two days of the meet will result in the surpassing by a wide margin of previous records of revenue and passengers carried, established since the system was first put in operation.

Fifteen cars will be in service all day Wednesday and Thursday, from the heart of the city on Jasper avenue to the Exhibition park, giving a seven and a half minute service by way of Alberta avenue, and a twelve minute service along the new Jasper east extension, which has not heretofore been in use.

From Twenty-fourth street to the entrance to the Exhibition park, cars will run continuously throughout the day, the cars which in normal times make their terminus at the corner of Alberta and Syndicate, where they are met by the regular packing plant line, being run through to the city park limits. Eleven cars will be commissioned for this special service, and on the Jasper avenue extension east, four cars will transport passengers to and from the south entrance to the exhibition grounds throughout the days of the race meet. There will be no double-deckers, and while it is not anticipated that the service can prove quite adequate to the traffic, and congestion in the cars is inevitable, the service will be better than has ever been given in the past.

This afternoon the first train run over the new roadbed along Jasper east, by way of Kinaird street, Pine avenue and Agnes street to the fair grounds will be made. The bed is in excellent condition and it is not anticipated that any difficulty will be experienced in handling the heavy traffic over this route on Wednesday and Thursday. The line enters the east end pary south of the fair grounds, looping over by way of Spruce avenue, Agnes street, it does not dip into the exhibition grounds, but the passengers will be able to disembark at a point within a few yards of the turnstiles.

An effort is being made by Secretary Harrison and the directors of the exhibition association to secure a special service on the steam railroads, from the C. N. R. depot to the exhibition grounds, and if this is secured the handling of the crowds to and from the grounds will present no problems.

By the date of the fall fair, Superintendent Knight announced to the Capital that the street railway department expects to be in a position to run their cars to and from the grounds in blocks of four.

Entries for the events of the spring meet will be announced by the race committee of the exhibition association tomorrow.

Revision of the Charter One Profitable Outcome Of Present Perplexities

"First of all, let us kill all the lawyers," was Henry Eighth's idea of the way to commence a crusade of reform, and the Chinese go Henry one better by prohibiting the practice of law at all, in which country they must enjoy at least a reasonable immunity from perplexities manufactured at a rate per perplex.

Certainly the lawyers are a nuisance and while it is not feasible at the present moment to resort to the Henry Eighth method of abatement, it is quite feasible for cities to get along with their ordinary everyday business without so much meddling by the legal fraternity.

The city employs a commissioner whom the council decides should be dismissed, but the commissioner hires a lawyer and the members of the council find that, although they employ two other lawyers to protect themselves and the city from the commissioners' lawyer and another lawyer who has been elected to the council and who is representing the citizens at the same time as he is adding to the perplexities of the city, they are still powerless to dismiss the commissioner because a lawyer points out certain rules made by certain other lawyers which have not been strictly adhered to.

There is no question about what the members of the council want to do; there is no question about there being a majority of the council in favor of dismissal; there is no question about the abstract contention that the city ought to be able to discharge any employee whom it does not want to keep; and there is no question that the council are the elected representatives of the citizens in whose name they are endeavoring to act. But the councilors are working under a charter, with the compilation of which they were in no way consulted, and the council finds that by reading this charter a certain way it means something that neither the councilors nor any of the ratepayers ever imagined it could mean; that the city is different in some way from any other class of employer and that it is not according to the rules to let a commissioner out by merely stopping his pay, the same as any private employer in the city would do.

So therefore while lawyers wrangle about points of law, with a haughty disregard for the clock and the calendar, summer slips along and the city is not getting its pumps and power plant installed because the council will not let the commissioner order some fresh machinery which every mechanical man on the job has reported against and the commissioner refuses to order any other, with the result that none at all is ordered and the city faces the gloomy prospect of being short of water, light and power again next winter the same as it was two years ago.

To escape from this the council undertakes to Lloyd-George the commissioner into the minority by appointing two more commissioners, but the lawyer who has got into the council immediately arises to point out that there is another technicality of law on which he can protest one of the appointments and, lawyer-like, he makes it his business to add as much as he can to the city's perplexities, with the very probable result that he will make it impossible for the council to provide for water and light next winter after all.

How long the lawyers, if left to themselves, would wrangle about the commissioner and how he should be discharged is a question which no ordinary citizen would care to even make a guess at, but lawyers commenced wrangling about nine thousand years ago—or at least that is as far back as history records the fact of their wrangles—and they have been wrangling ever since, to the constant perplexity of the human race, and the probabilities are that if the city administration were tied up until the lawyers agreed on anything that the grass would grow in the streets before any administering were done.

So that if the city is to ever get its regular work-a-day business done, it must do it with the assistance of the lawyers but in spite of them and the only way that the lawyers can be prevented from butting in again the next time a commissioner has to be fired is by the application of the recall.

If Mr. Bouillon were an elected commissioner who held his office subject to the recall this would have been settled ten days after it was raised, either by voting him a confidence which would continue him in office or voting him a want of confidence which would be a dismissal which all the lawyers in the world could not over-ride.

The present situation is certainly aggravating and its consequences may be distressing, especially if next winter, when the thermometer stands some night at 40 or 50 below, some citizens have the unique sensation of standing in the street and watching their homes burn to the ground because there is no water to put the fire out.

But if the present situation leads to the city of Edmonton getting a charter that is fitted to the conditions that present themselves to a modern city such as this, the perplexities and aggravations will not all have been suffered in vain.

An Empire Conquered By Simple Emotion Of Living at Home

For anyone who has a streak of pessimism in his composition a visit to the land office these days should furnish the antidote.

Possibly few of us even in Edmonton realize the drama of development that is going on in Central and Northern Alberta, nor what it all means.

But when we come to consider the circumstance that of all the men who compose the throng which crowds the land office counter proportionately few do newcomers to drive him from his native land, that once when he files on his claim, after which the city sees the settler no more, some vague idea of the significance of the movement may be gathered.

The history of the human race has made record of some wonderful migrations, but it is doubtful if ever there was another such as this, the orderly, organized, systematic, onward march of civilization into the last best west. With no pressure of plague war or pestilence behind the newcomers to drive him from his native land, that once when he files on his claim, after which the city sees the settler no more, some vague idea of the significance of the movement may be gathered.

And it is free—in the literal sense; free and wide open to every man who wants a home. One hundred and sixty acres each to whoever will use it of the best land that lies out of doors, and no questions asked except that the potential citizen carry out his end of the implied contract by turning to best account the land which is given him out of the nation's bounty.

What we see happening here in Edmonton today nobody will ever see happen on the North American continent again because this is possibly the last; there is no more beyond. When the curtain is rung down on the drama of the chance to acquire a free home will have been forever closed on this continent and history will have turned another page, a page in which the record is the record of a continent that is all owned.

Some day the writer who will see it all clearly will come and his story will be one that will stir the human race, the story of an empire conquered by the peaceful means of occupation and development, presaged by no lust for gold nor riot of conquest, but prompted and promoted by that one simple and best of all human emotions, the love of a home.

Stray Topics From Little Old New York

New York, May 23.—The sky-line of lower Manhattan will show an important change after the completion of the gigantic skyscraper which Woolworth, of "Five and Ten Cent Store" fame is now building on Broadway, opposite the Post Office. The building will be the highest in the city, towering fifty feet above the record-holding Metropolitan life structure. The famous Singer building, only a few years ago the highest building in the country, will be dwarfed to the extent of more than 150 feet. The new building, which will, of course, be devoted to office purposes, will have fifty-two stories, including the tower surmounting the structure.

In many respects the new building will be the most perfectly equipped office building in the city. It will be steel and concrete structure, is nearly fireproof as it is possible to make any building. The elevator shafts and the stairways will be completely insulated by fireproof walls and the doors to the shafts will be of metal, with wired glass and so fitted as to make the shafts smoke-proof.

To insure the safety of the structure its foundation will rest upon the solid rock underlying Manhattan Island. Although the work on the foundation has been barely commenced, applications for offices in the building have already begun to come in. It is characteristic that one of the first applications was for an office on the top floor of the tower. There will, undoubtedly, be a view from the windows of the top floor, but the top floor has its disadvantages—should anything happen to the elevators.

Mayor Gaynor may have gained popularity in certain circles by coming to the gallery, but his peculiar attitude in regard to the police force of the city has undoubtedly led to a rather unfortunate state of affairs. There were, without doubt, occasional instances of brutality by members of the police force, but to deprive the whole force of their night-sticks, their only weapon of defence against the lawless elements which may be used in extreme cases only, Mayor Gaynor made a serious mistake. Such is the opinion of an overwhelming majority of good citizens.

Mayor Gaynor's policy has greatly increased the difficulty of the police men's task to maintain peace and order in cases of riots. There was an example the other day. Eighteen policemen escorted a machinist to his work to protect him from being mobbed by the strikers at that factory. A mob of about five hundred strikers attacked the little party and for many minutes kept up a continuous fusillade of bottles, rocks, bricks, etc. The policemen, deprived of their clubs, were utterly helpless and many of them were injured by the missiles hurled at them.

The recent clamor against the police and the attempt to discredit the faithful of the individual members of the force is beginning to bear its fruit.

The other day three young men, who had been caught in the act of breaking into a grocery store, were tried on the charge of burglary. Although the testimony of the policemen, who had arrested them, was fully corroborated by several reputable citizens, among them the owners of the store, who had discovered the burglars at work, the jury failed to agree, standing eleven to one for acquittal. In dismissing the jury the judge severely lectured them on allowing themselves to be influenced by the recent clamor against the police. In such an extreme case the jury accepted the unsupported statement of the defendants in preference to the testimony of the policemen, corroborated by the testimony of several reputable private citizens.

The board of Aldermen has voted $50,000 to be expended upon a "safe and sound" public celebration of the glorious Fourth. Last year only $15,000 were available for that purpose and the celebration was therefore a trifle unsatisfactory. Fifty thousand is a large sum to spend for fireworks and band concerts, but it will be money well spent if it helps to reduce even so little the clamorousness of individual patriotic celebrations.

Laboring under the delusion of being a monkey, a young man caused considerable excitement by his actions in front of Miss Helen M. Gould's Fifth Avenue home the other morning. He took off his shoes and climbed a tree in front of the house. Then he perched himself upon one of the branches and gave an excellent imitation of a monkey, gestulating and chattering at the crowd which soon surrounded the tree. Finally a policeman arrived upon the scene. He ordered the man-monkey to come down, but the latter paid no attention to the order. There was nothing left to the officer than to climb the tree and the cheers and jeers of the crowd went on being down his prisoners by main force. At the station the prisoner gave his name and added that he had become a monkey after he had read that monkeys are reserved into the homes of millionaires. He was sent to Bellevue to undergo the fuller unnecessary formality of having his sanity tested.

Cannon Will Boom Around Whole World

At Precise Moment When King George is Crowned Royal Salutes Will be Fired in Principal Cities of Empire.

When in Westminster Abbey, on the afternoon of the twenty-second of June, the crown is placed upon the head of His Majesty King George V, at that very moment the emperor's guns will thunder out a salute all round the world.

"Long Live King George," will be the shout to ring through the corridors of the ancient abbeys as the Archbishop of Canterbury kneels before the throne, having performed the ancient ceremony. His fingers will not have ceased to touch the diadem ere the guns at every military station throughout the greatest empire that ever was, will have echoed the outburst of acclamation in the presence of the throne.

At Esquimaux and in Vancouver the crowning of the king will be heralded by artillery; at Montreal and Toronto, the climax of the coronation ceremonies will thus be marked. And at the same instant in India, New Zealand, Australia, South Africa, Canada, Malta, and the most remote quarters where the Union Jack is flown the rumbling of twenty-one guns will indicate the loyalty of King George's subjects.

Men of all bloods and all colors will join throughout the earth in a demonstration of patriotism such as was never given any earthly monarch. It is calculated that the exact time of the crowning of the King will be some minutes of two o'clock in the afternoon. The Colonial Office in London will flash the signal to the overseas military stations and to the far cities.

Vancouver's program for the day has not yet been planned. The military authorities are awaiting orders from the militia department at Ottawa. At Esquimaux, however, the guns of twenty-one guns will be fired. The Rainbow will be at anchor in Vancouver and will participate in the salute. But, on the British Empire, the sun never sets. Here comes in an unusual feature. If the crown of allies is set upon the royal head at two o'clock London time, or within a few minutes of two on the twenty-second of June, Vancouver's clocks will show the time to be about 5:25 in the morning, good eight hours before Greenwich.

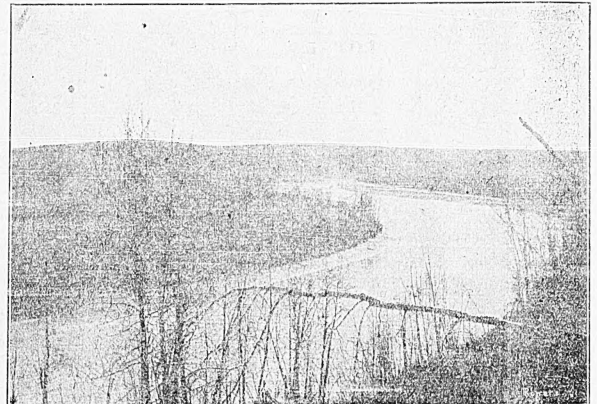

Though the guns at Auckland, New Zealand will boom simultaneously with those in London, it will be two o'clock p.m., June 22, in London, and half past one a.m., June 23, in New Zealand.

It has taken some mathematician calculation to fix throughout the Empire the various hours at which the salute should be given. The following hours will be fired at the following hours in the places mentioned.

Singapore 12:05 a.m., June 23
Melbourne 11:10 p.m., June 22
Natal 11:14 p.m., June 22
Perth (North Australia) 9:43 p.m., June 22

Compressed Air to Aid Mail Delivery Through Canada

Postmaster General Announces That Employees of Postal Service Are to be Reclassified and Better Paid

Montreal, May 23.—A significant notice of an important resolution was allowed to slip by without comment a few days ago when the Postmaster General announced at Ottawa that employees of the postal service were to be reclassified. Briefly Mr. Lemieux proposes to re-arrange the service in such a way that mail will be on the move almost every moment from the time it is posted to the time it is delivered. The waste seconds, minutes and even hours when a letter is at rest, either in the corner post box awaiting collection, in a sack to the post office waiting to be sorted out, or in pigeon hole awaiting delivery, will be reduced to minimum.

According to Mr. Lemieux's statement several of the classes of postal employees are to be abolished, and an increase of pay is to be granted to the others. In Montreal it is noticed that the uniformed force, the men who walk the city with the pouches and bags full of mail on their backs, is to be decreased. Until the reason was discovered there was considerable objection on the part of citizens. Now, it appears, the government has in hand plans calling for the installation of the system of letter delivery and collection. Drop a note into the tube in your office and, presto, it is whisked off to the post-office where it is sorted out immediately with others of the dead mail and shot into another tube which whisks it off to the sub-post-office where the address is deciphered. If it is for the out-of-town mail, of course, has to wait for the fast growing mail train service.

The Moccasin Telegraph. The regular mail and telegraph service was badly held the other day in herding the sad news of the death of Inspector Fitzgerald of the Royal West Mounted Police and his three companions, all of whom were frozen to death on the Dawson-Fort Thompson trail. Well, over a month before the official despatch announcing the fate of these gallant officers was sent out from Regina, Charlie Pearson, a constable stationed at Athabasca Landing, 100 miles north of Edmonton, had heard from the Indians that "Fitz" was dead. The Peelt river Indians had told the Fort Good Hope Indians; they had told the Dog River Indians; the Dog River Indians told the Slavey Indians; the Slavey Indians told the Greys and so the story had come—nearly two thousand miles from west within the Arctic circle to civilization. Pearson wrote the news to Forbes Sutherland, an old comrade of Fitzgerald during the early days in the north, and there had been time for an exchange of two letters between Montreal and Athabasca Landing before the Commissioner of the Police at Regina had received a telegram from Dawson on the subject. This is not the first time by any means that the rapidity with which news travelling by snowshoe and dog train has surprised civilization.

Fashionable women who have de-luxed ordering their spring and summer supply of the puffs, ruffs, and other mysterious paraphernalia with which women's natural supply of hair is augmented, face an embarrassing state of affairs. The reason for this is the strike of the workers engaged in the making of switches, transformations and similar aids to the hair dresser's art. These employees demand an advance in wages and claim that at the rate public puts an early end to the even able to equip themselves with a fair supply of the artificial curls which plait the hair of the numbers for their more fortunate sisters. As this city is the Canadian centre of the artificial hair market, the difficulty might be met by using last season's styles but the horror with which this proposal was received is convincing evidence that if there is anything more useless than a last year's bird's nest it must be last year's curls.

Two days are early this year. To those who do not understand the slang of the financial districts it may be explained that the dog days are the days when business is slack and trading is at a standstill. They occur periodically at no set time, but are usual, most frequent in July or August. The term is believed to have originated years ago in New York amongst the brokers on the Stock Exchange. Just behind the great money market in that city there used to stand a little man who kept a dog market. When business was poor the financiers used to while away the time buying, trading and talking dogs.

Montreal brokers need a dog market badly sometimes, and seldom as badly as these days. The only novel occurrence which has taken place about the Montreal Stock Exchange for weeks has been the listing of the securities of the Sawyer-Massey Company, Limited, Canada's largest manufacturing company of farming implements. When stocks are newly listed they invariably attract a certain amount of interest and not infrequently lead the market in activity for the time being. Seventy-five years ago the present huge concern was a village blacksmith shop, or more properly speaking, a machine shop. Like Topsy it "just sprang" with the rest of the country to its present huge dimensions. Until a year or so ago it was practically a closed corporation, but in 1910 through a reorganization which brought the present company into being, an opportunity was afforded for public participation in the enterprise. The headquarters of the company are at Hamilton where the manufacturing site covers about fifteen acres. As the present factories and warehouses only cover an area of about five acres, ample room is afforded for extensions when necessary, although the present factories are capable of producing a much larger output than at present. The growth of the business within the last twenty years has been remarkable. In 1880 the total assets amounted to about $50,000. Without any further outside capital whatever being put into the business, the net assets in 1909, had grown to be over $2,000,000, in spite of the fact that, in the meantime $125,000 had been paid out in cash dividends.

This Article Dispels Illusion Canadian Bluebook Is Dry

Bluebook? To many an ear this word may sound strange and meaningless. Yet it will be useless to look it up in the dictionary, for even the very latest editions do not contain it; nor is an explanation of its meaning to be found in the most voluminous encyclopaedia. It has simply been coined for the occasion, and very well indeed, does it express what the writer intends to convey—bluebookology, the science of blue books.

Blue books, to the average mind, convey an expression of an official or printed pages, filled with the driest of dry material. To pronounce a study of them to be a fascinating pursuit savors of the ludicrous and might brand the maker of such a statement as a lunatic. Yet only he who has delved among the piles and piles of dusty tomes, which one under this head has a right to an opinion at all. Everybody else is taking unwarranted foolishness.

A Prophetic Poop The tremendous output of blue books by all the great governments of the world is one of the phenomena of the day. It is creating a field for research which is daily becoming more and more complex and interesting. Bluebookology from being a jest may become a very serious business in the near future and it may not be long before the establishment of departments of bluebookology in the universities, may confer degrees on students of bluebookology and become members of bluebookological societies. Stranger things have happened.

It will probably be objected that such a department will only serve to make the subject more dry and prosy than it is now. If that is so, there be in its study, wherein does that fascination lie? In order to demonstrate this to the satisfaction of everybody it will be necessary to go straight to the root of the matter, not with a blue book on the table, but with a blue book on the table prove that it contains matter of general interest and entertainment.

Here then is a sturdy volume of 665 pages, scintillating with an endless number of names and addresses interspersed with rows and rows of figures. It looks absolutely uninteresting. Yet, did you but realize it, this book is a revelation of the source and ownership of a great part of the country's wealth—a disclosure of personal finance which will whet the appetite of the most curious, prying, and inquisitive of the country. It is the authorized government list of shareholders in Canada's chartered banks, with the exact amount of each one's holdings.

Holdings. Perhaps you never are aware that such a list existed, and that it is public property. Yet here, it is, and by order of parliament, freely open to the inspection of any interested person.

The man who has vigorously asserted that blue books are dry, and now begin to hunch his chair up to the table and with ill-concealed curiosity proceed to make some personal investigations. The fascination of the pursuit of bluebookology is better a hold on him.

Largest Holder of Stock In the 655 pages of this particular blue book appears a list of all the holders of stock in Canada's banks, from the lucky people who hold Bank of Montreal stock, which they get tomorrow for $250 a share, to the poor unfortunates who would probably be willing to pay cash to be relieved of their Farmers' Bank holdings. They are all there, in the line-light and there is nothing to hinder an investigator from probing to the very bottom of things.

Who is the largest holder of bank stock in Canada and in which bank stocks has he invested? This is an interesting and perfectly legitimate question. Probably very few people could answer it with any degree of accuracy. Our bluebookological student, however, will give us the answer correctly. He will tell us that Sir William Macdonald, of Montreal, is the fortunate man. His holdings as recorded in the latest list consist of 5,000 shares in the Bank of Montreal, 3,118 shares in the Canadian Bank of Commerce and 1,500 shares in the Merchants Bank. At the present market value of these stocks, he is worth $1,897,926 in bank stock alone. His dividend from the three banks would amount to $91,251.

Four Thousand Shareholders Another question which may occur to the curiously-minded is, which bank has the longest list of shareholders. It will be found that the Canadian Bank of Commerce heads the list with approximately 4,000 shareholders. The Bank of Montreal comes second with approximately 3,000 shareholders. But there is this difference, however, that while the average holding of the Commerce shareholders is 25 shares each, the average holdings of the Montreal shareholders is 16 shares each. This question of the average holding of stock in the various banks is of considerable interest and leads to the query, which bank has the largest and which the smallest average. To get at this considerable figure must be done. The result will show that the bank of Toronto, which has 16,000 shares of stock divided among some 200 shareholders, hold the record with an average of 27 shares, with the Bank of Ottawa shares. The clearing bank, with its 9,294 shares spread over 1,770 shareholders, has the smallest average—approximately a share.

All these figures are approximate but, for the purpose of comparison they are sufficiently correct.

That a considerable portion of Canadian bank stock is held outside Canada is apparent from even a cursory inspection of the lists. The largest shareholder in the Bank of Commerce is an American—W. Clark Craig, of Vicksburg, Miss., who owns 5,000 shares. G. Ledyard Blair, of New York, is the largest holder of Royal Bank stock, owning 1,500 shares. William Ramsay, of Stow, Scotland, holds the list of Imperial Bank shareholders with 1,945 shares. Sir W. H. Harling, Bart., of Stroud, Eng., shares with a Canadian, the honor of being highest shareholder in the United Empire Bank stock—300 shares. In Eastern Townships, Colonel Horace H. Haskell, of Vermont, comes first with 450 shares. Dr. J. Eldsde Moore of Woking, England, has the largest holding in Montreal Bank stock—200 shares.

So, from this one blue book alone there has been unearthed considerable interesting material. The discovery that it contains such a store of information will serve to whet the appetite for more, and other blue books will be seized upon and carefully examined.

Mysteries of Money What is this next volume on the shelf? It is still larger and it too is filled from end to end with names, a whole legion of them, of all nationalities and climes. The cover bears the title, "Report, the Dividends remaining unpaid, Unclaimed Balances, Drafts and Bills of Exchange in Chartered Banks." Does not that sound interesting? Perchance, reader, your name appears there. You may have quite forgotten the existence of that old bank account of yours. It will be like finding money to draw that balance. Or, perhaps you may find that some relative of yours has left behind some money, the existence of which no one dreamt of. The book is full of just such romantic chances. The list is for a period of five years and upwards prior to December 31, 1909. Unclaimed balances amount to the amazing total of $556,001.92. This means that people who have deposited this sum in the chartered banks prior to December 31, 1909, never came back to claim it during the five succeeding years. How many strange experiences are involved in this holdy-stated fact.

Some one may now ask, which bank has the largest total of unclaimed balances on its books. A table at the front of the book will show this. It discloses the fact that the Montreal City and District Savings Bank has a sum of $121,515.79 outstanding and its extent will be a cause of surprise. The Bank of Montreal comes second with $99,986.91 and the Bank of Nova Scotia third with $70,680.67.

$4,000 Left Unclaimed Now let us take a hurried glance through the lists. As may be expected, most of the balances are small, but here and there larger sums are to be noted. Here, for instance, is $3,929.87, the balance to the credit of John Martineau, of Montreal, in the Bank of Montreal, on March 25, 1899. From then until December 31, 1909, at any rate, this amount was not claimed. All sorts of conjectures might be made as to the reason for the non-appearance of John Martineau again.

And here is Colin Stewart, of Inverness, Scotland, who had to his credit $1,848.00 in the Bank of British North America, on August 4, 1888. Why did he never come back to claim his money? On January 7, 1902, M. J. Aherne, of Quebec, put in his last appearance in the same bank, leaving there a balance of $7,616.83. Up to the end of 1909 he never returned, and the probabilities are that he has not turned up since. Miss K. Campbell, of New York, left $5,613.19 in the B. N. A. Bank on June 8, 1902, and she too did not return. These are a few of the larger amounts in the list, but they are sufficient to indicate what a wealth of romance has buried in this apparently uninteresting book.

Mexico City, May 23.—Following the occupation of Toluca last week by rebels, 206 Chinamen residing in the city were massacred, according to official reports reaching here today. The men seem to have been turned loose on the town and looting and rapine ran riot with no attempt to official reports reaching here today. Winnipeg, May 23.—Advertisements are published here offering 150 acre reward for information that will lead to the discovery of Clement Goodman, formerly of Woodford Green, Essex, Eng., who arrived at Halifax, N. S., April 9, 1907, on his way to Alberta. He left Macleod on March 17, 1908, by Calgary and registered at the Dominion Hotel in the latter city. It is understood that he left the hotel the following day in the company of a man named Burton and has not been heard of since. His solicitors in London are inquiring for him.
